

DR. VINCENT DIES
SUDDENLY IN OFFICE

Noted Surgeon Attending Woman
Patient When Stricken
With Heart Attack.

Dr. Wesley Grove Vincent, fifty-three, instructor in surgery of the Post-Graduate Hospital and a widely known surgeon, died in his office at his home, No. 498 West End Avenue, last night in a sudden attack. He had been engaged at the hospital all afternoon and complained that he was ill when he returned to his home. Though he had retired immediately on his arrival, Dr. Vincent insisted on rising and going to his office two hours later, when told a woman patient awaited treatment. He had made his examination of this patient and turned to his instrument cabinet, when he fell to the floor and became unconscious. The woman summoned Mrs. Vincent, and in response to her telephone request Dr. Morrell B. Beals of No. 408 West End Avenue soon arrived.

Dr. Vincent was still alive, but all of Dr. Beals' efforts to save him were in vain and he expired in a few minutes. Heart disease was the cause of death.

Dr. Vincent, born in Oak Bluffs, Mass., Dec. 6, 1871, was the son of Francis P. Vincent and Minnie E. Kilian. Graduated from Phillips Exeter Academy in 1892, he won his A. B. at Yale in 1896 and his medical degree there in 1900. His professional activities began in the Post-Graduate Hospital, in the service of which he spent his life, entering as assistant attending surgeon soon after his graduation in medicine. In 1904 Dr. Vincent married Miss Ethel Boorum Gresham. He was member of the New York Academy of Medicine, State Medical Society, and the Medical Society of Greater New York.

Introducing the Vendome Sandals

The Fashion of the hour, in Paris

There is an exclusive little bootmaker in the Faubourg St. Honoré who make the most charming sandals in Paris, and it was from him that we bought the originals of the sandals which we are introducing today. —in patent leather, of course, because it is decidedly the smartest for daytime wear. These sandals have been so successfully adapted that while they retain all the chic of the French sandals they have the added distinction of fitting the foot of the American woman perfectly.
